

Kajjubi Nurudini

A certified veterinarian of 22 years, Nurudini joined IYHA as our veterinarian and livestock trainer in 2015 and is part of the team that oversees all IYHA-related livestock projects throughout the sub-county where we operate. Additionally, Nurudini has also been elected by his community as a village leader and has consequently served on the Local Council for the last 15 years. In that capacity, Nurudini helps create and implement local policies and security measures for the community, implements all governmental programs such as mosquito net distribution, and spearheads local government meetings, reporting community needs and challenges to the regional council. In addition to his veterinary and leadership positions, Nurudini farms coffee and matooke (a fruit similar to plantains) and owns a local grocery store.
